God! what sight is there? Tis Alix charming face and golden-cluster d hair! The nobles, terror-struck, press d round her form; The corslet from her bosom they unbound; The Queen herself stoop d down to stanch the warm Current of life fast gushing from the wound--Ha! who is he that dasheth with a bound, Through the close ranks, in breathless haste to cast Himself beside her on the bloody ground; He locks her head in his embraces fast, He strains his gaze upon her, as it were the last? A thousand kisses on each ashen cheek, And on her livid lips he prints, and cries, Open your eyes, my own wife; only speak; Speak to me, only, Alix; ope your eyes; Tis Raynard calls--your husband by you lies. --Slowly as morning mists up mountains roll, Her eyelids, laden with the death-dews, rise, And with a look so full of love, the whole Of life swims there, she scans the partner of her soul. Pardon me, my dear lord, the pious cheat Which to my letter plac d your signet ring; In all a loyal life my first deceit; And pardon me, my sovereign lord and king; This thought, lov d Raynard, takes from death the sting, That my life s forfeit hath...
